

Arterial Stiffness as a Biomarker for Age-Related Cardiovascular Disease

Biomarkers are being used increasingly to identify high-risk individuals, to accurately diagnose disease conditions even prior to the onset of clinical symptoms and signs, and to effectively prognosticate and treat patients with disease. This presentation provides an overview of the value of arterial stiffness as a biomarker for age-related cardiovascular disease.